FEDERAL INTERFERENCE WITH STATE LAWS.

Elsewhere in this number of the Bulletin will be found an important opinion from the office of the Attorney General of Pennsylvania dealing with the power of the Federal government to interfere with State laws, or the power of the several states in the matter of the exercise of its police powers. The opinion was prepared by George Ross Hull, Deputy Attorney General, and is one of the most vitally important ever furnished the Food Bureau as it makes plain certain facts in connection with the relations of the Internal Revenue Department with the State food bureaus and the State regulations adopted to guard against the manufacture, distribution and sale of food products. The Bulletin bespeaks for this legal paper a careful reading as it is a masterly document and one that seems to have been urgently needed at this particular time.

This opinion was asked for by the Director of Foods for the reason that almost at the very close of President Wilson's administration Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams, issued a regulation, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, the enforcement of which would have had the effect of practically destroying our State Oleomargarine Law, so far as it relates to the labeling of retail packages. About the same time the Federal Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in pursuance of a ruling issued from the office of the Attorney General of the United States, proceeded to levy a tax of ten cents per pound on butter made by a certain method and from certain ripened creams, on the ground that it was adulterated butter. This decision would affect about 70 per cent. of the butter made in the creameries of the United States.

This unusual and entirely unexpected action by Federal officials at the moment they are preparing to retire from office, quite naturally was followed by an uprising of the dairy industry of the country. State food officials have also been greatly surprised and, in many instances, considerably embarrassed by the new ruling from Washington at such a time as this. It is not the purpose of State officials to permit the Federal government, in such a way to override carefully constructed and essentially necessary State laws if it can be prevented. And surely the states have some rights under which wise laws protective of the consuming public may be preserved and enforced.

AN IMPORTANT OPINION

THE RIGHTS OF THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA DEFINED.
By Deputy Attorney General.

February 3, 1921.

Honorable James Foust, Director, Bureau of Foods, Harrisburg, Pa.

Sir: This Department is in receipt of your request of yesterday for an opinion as to the effect of Treasury Decision No. 3117 of the Commissioner of United States Internal Revenue, approved by the Secretary of the Treasury January 15, 1921, upon the statutory regulation of this State requiring the wrapping and stamping of oleomargarine, sold within this State.

I have before me a circular letter issued by one of the large manufacturers of oleomargarine and sent to its customers (wholesalers) in this State, on January 29th. It bears at the top in red letters, as large as those which our law requires to be stamped on the wrappers of oleomargarine, this legend:

"NO RUBBER STAMP REQUIRED."

The letter continues:

"The retail dealers require no rubber stamp when selling .....oleomargarine in cartons.....These brands are packed in cartons which conform to all regulations and according to a recent ruling of the office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may be sold to customers by the retail dealer without further marking or the use of a rubber stamp. It is not necessary to wrap cartons or enclose them in paper bags. Send in your orders for prompt shipment."

In view of the serious and widespread misunderstanding which may be created as to the effect of this Federal regulation upon sales of oleomargarine in this State, a brief review of the statute and case law on the subject will be valuable.

The Treasury Decision referred to, is as follows:

"(T. D. 3117.)

OLEOMARGARINE.

Retail dealers in oleomargarine may sell properly branded cartons from the original manufacturer's package without further wrapping or branding.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

Office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue,
Washington, D. C.

TO COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE AND OTHERS CONCERNED:

Oleomargarine packed by the manufacturer in cartons which are branded with the word 'oleomargarine' in conspicuous letters not less than one-quarter of an inch square, statement of net weight, and otherwise in conformity with the regulations, may be sold by retail oleomargarine dealers from the original stamped container without any further marking or branding of said cartons, or of the wrapper or paper bag used by the retailer in delivering such cartons to a customer. The statement of the name and address of the retail dealer need not appear on such cartons.

Retail dealers are cautioned to see that each carton of oleomargarine sold by them is in accordance with the regulations, or they will render themselves liable to the penalty imposed by Section 6 of the Oleomargarine Law for selling an improperly branded package.

Regulations Number 9, Revised 1907, pages 65-66 Circular Number 414, Revised 1918, Article 12, are hereby amended accordingly.

WM. M. WILLIAMS,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

APPROVED:

January 15, 1921.

D. F. Houston,
Secretary of the Treasury."

This decision is made under the authority vested in the Commissioner of Internal Revenue by the Act of Congress of August 2, 1886, Ch. 840, 20 Statutes at Large 210, U. S. Comp. Statutes, 1916, Sections 6215-6241, which Act is a Federal revenue measure, and does not in any way affect the enforcement of reasonable police regulations of the several states.

The Pennsylvania Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 327, as amended by the Act of June 5, 1913, P. L. 412, provides, inter alia, in Section 4:

"and when oleomargarine, butterine or other similar substance not in imitation of yellow butter, is sold from such tub or package, or otherwise, at retail, in print, roll or other form, before being delivered to the purchaser it shall be wrapped in wrappers, plainly stamped on the outside thereof with the word 'OLEOMARGARINE', printed or stamped thereon in letters one-fourth inch square; and said wrapper shall also contain the name and address of the seller and the quantity sold, and no other words thereon, and the said word 'OLEOMARGARINE,' so stamped or printed on the said wrapper, shall not be in any manner concealed, but shall be in plain view of the purchaser at the time of purchase."

The Act of Congress of May 9, 1902, Ch. 784, 32 Statutes at Large 193, U. S. Comp. Statutes 1916, Section 8740 provides:

"All articles known as oleomargarine, butterine, imitation, process, renovated, or adulterated butter, or imitation cheese, or any substance in the semblance of butter, or cheese not the usual product of the dairy and not made exclusively of pure and unadulterated milk or cream, transported into any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, and remaining therein for the use, consumption, sale, or storage therein, shall, upon the arrival within the limits of such State or Territory, or the District of Columbia, be subject to the operation and effect of the laws of such State or Territory or the District of Columbia, enacted in the exercise of its police powers to the same extent and in the same manner as though such articles or substances had been produced in such State or Territory or the District of Columbia, and shall not be exempt therefrom by reason of being introduced therein in original packages or otherwise."

Oleomargarine sold in Pennsylvania may, for the purpose of this opinion, be divided into two classes: (1) that which is manufactured and sold within the State, and (2) that which is imported from other States or foreign countries.

As to the first class, it has been held that this State has the power to regulate or, if it choose, to prohibit entirely its sale. Powell vs. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678; 32 L. ed. 253 (1887). The regulation of this much of the traffic was thus placed securely beyond the reach of Federal interference.

As to that which is manufactured elsewhere and imported into this State, it was held that in the absence of Congressional action the State could not prohibit or regulate the importation of such goods into this State nor its sale in the original package. Schollenberger vs. Pennsylvania, 171 U. S. 1, 43 L. ed. 49 (1898); Leisy vs. Hardin, 135 U. S. 100, 34 L. ed. 128 (1889).

Thus the law stood prior to the Act of Congress of May 9, 1902, above quoted. The police power of the State could operate to regulate the sale of oleomargarine imported from other States, only after it had been commingled with the general mass of property in the State by means of a sale in the original package or by a breaking of such original package.

The effect of the Act of Congress of May 9, 1902, was to subject oleomargarine transported in interstate commerce to the police regulation of the State to which it was destined, immediately upon its delivery at destination, and before any sale takes place, whether such sale be in the original package or not.

This is settled by the numerous decisions of the supreme court of the United States in cases arising under the act of August 8, 1890, Ch. 728, 26 Statutes at Large, 313 U. S. Comp. Statutes 1916, section 8738, commonly known as the WILSON ACT. That act related to sales of liquors imported into a state in interstate commerce. Except for the change of a few immaterial words, the act of 1902, relating to oleomargarine, is a verbatim copy of that act.

In Wilkerson vs. Rahrer, 140 U. S. 545, 35 Law. ed. 572 (1890), it was held that such legislation was constitutional, that Congress has the power to provide that certain designated subjects of interstate commerce shall be governed by a rule which divests them of that character at an earlier time than would otherwise be the case, and that it was not necessary for the State to re-enact its police regulations previously made, in order to make them operative upon the sale of goods imported from other states.

The following quotations state clearly the effect of this legislation:

In Vance vs. Vandercook Company, 170 U. S. 438, 42 La. ed. 1100 (1897), Mr. Justice White said:

"It is also certain that the settled doctrine is that the power to ship merchandise from one state into another carries with it, as an incident, the right in the receiver of the goods to sell them in the original packages, any state regulation to the contrary notwithstanding; that is to say, that the goods received by interstate commerce remain under the shelter of the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution, until by a sale in the original package they have been commingled with the general mass of property in the State.

"This last proposition, however, whilst generically true, is no longer applicable to intoxicating liquors, since Congress, in the exercise of its lawful authority has recognized the power of the several states to control the incidental right of sale in the original packages, of intoxicating liquors shipped into one state from another, so as to enable the states to prevent the exercise by the receiver of the accessory right of selling intoxicating liquors in the original packages except in conformity to lawful state regulations. In other words, by virtue of the act of Congress the receiver of intoxicating liquors in one state, sent from another, can no longer assert a right to sell in defiance of the state law in the original packages, because Congress has recognized to the contrary.

"The scope and effect of this act of Congress have been settled. Re Rahrer (Wilkerson v. Rahrer), 140 U. S. 545 (35:572): Rhodes v. The State of Iowa, 170 U. S. 412 (ante, 1088).

"In the first of these cases the constitutional power of Congress to pass the enactment in question was upheld, and the purpose of Congress in adopting it was declared to have been to allow state laws to operate on liquor shipped into one state from another, so as to prevent the sale in the original package in violation of state laws. In the second case the same view was taken of the statute, and although it was decided that the power of the state did not attach to the intoxicating liquor when in course of transit and until receipt and delivery, it was yet reiterated that the obvious and plain meaning of the act of Congress was to allow the state laws to attach to intoxicating liquors received by interstate commerce shipments before sale in the original package, and therefore at such a time as to prevent such sale if made unlawful by the state law."

In Delamater vs. South Dakota, 205 U. S. 93, 51 Law. ed. 725, (1906) the same justice said:

"It is settled by a line of decisions of this court, * * * that the purpose of the Wilson Act, as a regulation by Congress of interstate commerce was to allow the states, as to intoxicating liquors, when the subject of such commerce, to exert ampler power than could have been exercised before the enactment of the statute. In other words, that Congress, sedulous to prevent its exclusive right to regulate commerce from interfering with the power of the states over intoxicating liquor, by the Wilson act adopted a special rule enabling the states to extend their authority as to such liquor shipped from other states before it became commingled with the mass of other property in the state by a sale in the original package: Re Rahrer (Wilkerson v. Rahrer) 140 U. S. 545, 35 L. ed. 572, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 865; Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; Vance v. W. A. Vandercook Co. 170 U. S. 438, 42 L. ed. 1100, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 674; American Exp. Co. v. Iowa, 196 U. S. 133, 49 L. ed. 417, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 182; Adams Exp. Co. v. Iowa, 196 U. S. 147, 49 L. ed. 424, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Pabst Brewing Co. v. Crenshaw, 198 U. S. 17, 49 L. ed. 925, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 552; Foppiano v. Speed, 199 U. S. 501, 50 L. ed. 288, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 138; Heyman v. Southern R. Co. 203 U. S. 270, ante, 178, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 104."

And again in Rosenberger vs. Pacific Express Company, 241 U. S. 48, 60 Law. ed. 880 (1915), Mr. Justice White said:

"The Wilson act only modifies these controlling rules by causing interstate commerce shipments of intoxicating liquors to come under state control at an earlier date than they otherwise would; that is, after delivery but before sale in the original packages."

It is, therefore, well settled that, since the passage of the act of Congress of 1902, relating to oleomargarine, when a shipment of such goods enters this state from another, the moment it is delivered to its destination and before any sale is made, or the original package broken, it becomes subject to the police power of this state, which requires that all packages sold shall be wrapped and stamped as provided by section 4 of our act of 1901.

I, therefore, specifically advise you that the provisions of the Pennsylvania act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 327, requiring the wrapping and stamping of all packages of oleomargarine, apply to all such goods manufactured in this state and sold here, and apply to all such goods imported from other states the moment they are delivered at destination and before any sale takes place.

In view of the misunderstanding which has arisen by the circulars spread broadcast throughout the state, I would suggest that you give this ruling such publicity as in your discretion you deem necessary, and that thereafter you enforce vigorously the law of Pennsylvania relating to this matter.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) GEO. ROSS HULL,

Deputy Attorney General,

GROWTH OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

The efforts of the food officials of this Commonwealth to secure and maintain a high standard of efficiency in the manufacture and distribution of food products, as well as of non-alcoholic drinks, have been fairly well rewarded. When one takes a retrospective glance over the history of the State during the last twenty years, with special reference to the adoption and the enforcement of laws pertaining to food and drink, one easily perceives that the result has been very satisfactory. At the beginning of that period a fair start had been made, but only a start. As the years have passed one recognizes steadily advancing improvement. At present no other commonwealth in the Union has a better code of laws relating to food and drink than Pennsylvania.

In what has been accomplished the Bureau of Foods has been greatly aided by the efforts of honest manufacturers and dealers. We have in this country great manufacturing firms, as well as individual manufacturers, who take the utmost pride in maintaining the quality of their goods up to the highest standard. They would as soon do a dishonorable thing in their private life as in their business transactions. It is a joy to them to believe that their products have attained a nation-wide fame. Such corporations or individual manufacturers can be trusted to implicitly to obey the law and to make the business of enforcing the statutes comparatively easy for the officials of the Food Bureau. They are in themselves and in their business operations a great asset to the State.

The upright grocer, who exists in large numbers in this Commonwealth, is likewise a valued aid in the business of securing pure food products for their patrons. They are precisely of the same mind as the upright manufacturer. They are proud of the reputation gained by long years of business probity. Like other honest folks they are obedient to law. They get the best, for the reason that they know the imprint on the best is a positive guarantee of quality, of honesty in the business of preparation. They resist the temptation to fill their shelves with cheap imitations. And such business methods always pay in the end. Here and there unthinking folks are attracted by the bait of extraordinary cheapness, but the average housekeeper soon learns where dependable goods are always on sale and goes there.

The sort of housekeeper just mentioned is a tremendous aid in the enforcement of law, especially of laws regulating the manufacture and sale of food products. The organized women's clubs have done much commendable work in this direction. The members of these organizations have familiarized themselves with the provisions of the food laws, have made themselves acquainted with the requirements concerning labels and the penalties provided for misbranding and have made it their special business to examine the labels of all goods offered for sale by their grocers and to insist upon getting the exact article they inquired for. They have aided mightily by rejecting all counterfeit preparations and by turning a deaf ear to all propositions to give them "something just as good" at a reduced price.

The agents of the Bureau have been greatly aided in their work of enforcing the laws by all the individuals and corporations mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs. It is because of the growing familiarity of the people, and especially of the home-makers, with the value of unadulterated food and because of their increasing sympathy with the purpose of the various laws pertaining to food and drink that conditions have improved so decisively since the beginning of the present century.

PRECAUTIONS CONCERNING BOTULINUS.

The following official letter by the chief of the Federal Bureau of Chemistry in self explanatory:

To State and City Food Officials: The Bureau has had called to its attention recently several fatal cases of botulism which have been traced with more or less certainty to commercially canned spinach. Two series of fatalities, one occurring in Oakland, Calif., and the other at Grand Rapids, Mich., were almost certainly due to this cause. We are bringing this matter to your attention in order that you may be in a position to take such action as the terms of your law will permit to protect the public against the possibly serious consequences of consumption of such contaminated spinach.

At the outset, it is proper to state that in every fatal case of botulism in which the Bureau of Chemistry has handled the food held responsible, the spoiled condition was so evident to the senses that the material should have been destroyed as spoiled by the person opening the container. This is apparently true of the spinach poisoning cases at Oakland, California, and Grand Rapids, Michigan. In other words, decent care in the kitchen in the elimination of spoiled and rotten food from human consumption would have prevented these deaths. It can not be too strongly emphasized that rotten food, whether canned or in other forms, should always be discarded as potentially dangerous. No canned goods, home or commercial, can be regarded as safe without examination. No matter what the care in production or inspection during handling, an occasional spoiled can will actually reach the consumer and should be eliminated at the time of opening in the household. This letter of warning is by no means to be interpreted as an indictment of canning practices, either home or commercial.

This Bureau is handicapped in its action under the Food and Drugs Act in such cases because under the terms of that law it is necessary before seizure action can be effected to establish that a product is either filthy, decomposed or putrid or contains an added poisonous or deleterious ingredient, these being the only charges under which action in the case of spinach contaminated with BACILLUS BOTULINUS would be possible. Unquestionably the percentage of cans containing BACILLUS BOTULINUS is extremely small, and the likelihood of discovering them in the usual routine of sampling and analysis under the ordinary procedure of enforcing the Federal Food and Drugs Act is slight. Furthermore, in any seizure which might be made by far the largest proportion of the goods attached would unquestionably be sound and fit for consumption. Absolute protection of the public by seizure action therefore could only be insured by seizing all canned spinach on the market. Such a course is obviously impractical and improper.

The alternative appears to be an inspection of all outstanding goods by federal, state and city authorities with such co-operation as the trade is willing to give which will result in segregating and destroying absolutely all cans which show the slightest evidence of being in a decomposed condition. Unquestionably a large majority of the jobbers, wholesalers and retailers will be willing to destroy such goods voluntarily if they are brought to their attention. Where such voluntary action is not possible state and municipal laws can frequently be invoked to embargo an entire shipment until the desired action is taken by the holder.

In both well authenticated cases which have been reported to the Bureau the fatalities were caused by spinach in No. 10 cans. Presumably the size of the can is a contributing factor, since sterilization of such a large container is a difficult matter. The fatalities at Oakland, California, were occasioned by spinach packed by the Smith Frank Packing Company of Sacramento, California. The Bureau immediately on receipt of information regarding these cases made a thorough inspection of the plant of this concern, and found that reasonable precautions had apparently been taken to produce a safe pack. Examination of numerous samples collected at the plant of the No. 10 size and of various other sizes failed to show any evidence of BACILLUS BOTULINUS. The history of the cases, however, practically demonstrates that the outbreak was due to BACILLUS BOTULINUS produced by this brand of spinach.

In the more recent cases at Grand Rapids, Michigan, the causative agent was spinach packed in No. 10 cans by the El Monte Canning Company of El Monte, California. Analysis of specimens obtained from the same stock as that from which the can consumed by the victims was taken has not shown the presence of BACILLUS BOTULINUS. The history of the cases was, however, characteristic of botulism. It appears that the spinach packed by the El Monte Canning Company was distributed under various brands by a number of jobbers. As originally packed and distributed by the canner it bore the label "O' Brand Spinach Packed by El Monte Canning Co., El Monte, California." The Chicago brokers of these goods so far as we have learned were John H. Leslie & Co., and the Mueller-Fox Brokerage Co. Distribution was made to the following concerns; Steele Wedeles Co., Chicago, Ill.; Linse Brok. Co., La Crosse, Wis.; Max Schwarz, Dayton, Ohio; Morton L. Marks Co., Davenport Ia.; Franklin MacVeagh & Co., Chicago, Ill.; John G. Neumeister Co., Chicago, Ill.; Herman Miller, Chicago, Ill.; J. P. Michael Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; Western Grocery Co., Dubuque, Ia.; F. E. Royston & Co., Aurora, Ill.; Steele Hopkins Meredith Co., Springfield, Ohio.; A. H. Perfect & Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Acme Food & Specialty Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Andrew Kuehn Co., Sioux Falls, S. D.; William Canham & Sons, Fort Huron, Mich.; Metzler & Schaefer Co., Champaign, Ill.; Fowler Co., Waterloo, Iowa; Chas. J. Stifter, Detroit, Mich.; Nebraska & Iowa Merc. Co., Omaha, Neb.; B. A. Railton, Chicago, Ill.; Reid, Murdock & Co., Chicago, Ill.; John Sexton & Co., Chicago, Ill.; Sprague, Warner & Co., Chicago, Ill.; Stevenson Benke Co., Chicago, Ill.; J. M. Woodcock Co., Chicago, Ill.

The goods were distributed by the Steele-Wedeles Co. of Chicago under their Savoy Brand label. No information is as yet available regarding the brands used by other distributors.

In giving this information the Bureau is not disposed to emphasize a particular brand or canner, but to suggest that a thorough going inspection of all canned spinach be made. The canning trade is fully alive to the dangers of the situation, and is itself now taking every precaution which can be suggested to prevent similar outbreaks. The safety of the public, however, requires that such precautions be supplemented by steps on the part of food officials in general which will result in preventing the sale of suspicious goods which are already on the market without at the same time bringing about the destruction of goods which are perfectly sound.

In the examination of consignments of canned spinach first attention should naturally be given to the elimination of swells. It is suggested, however, that there may be occasional cans in which decomposition has occurred which because of a slight leakage around the seam show no evidence of swelling. Particular attention should therefore be paid to stains on the label or cans since these are frequently indicative of slight leaks in the particular can or in one which has been in contact with it. The odor of such stains will sometimes give a clue to the character of the contents of the can.

Respectfully,
C. L. ALSBERG,
Chief.

CONCERNING DAIRY PRODUCTS.

During the year 1920 the various agents of the Bureau of Foods, in pursuit of the particular business for which the State engages them, purchased 3,192 samples of dairy products, including butter, cream, milk, condensed milk, evaporated milk and skim milk. Of this entire number 2,816 were found to comply absolutely with the provisions of the law, while but 376 prosecutions were turned in during that period for violations of the laws relating to the sale of such products.

Only a single sample of cream contained formaldehyde. One sample of milk was found to contain this poisonous preservative. Not a trace of boric acid or other preservatives was found in any of the samples. This happy state of affairs is in marked contrast to the conditions which prevailed sixteen years ago when over six hundred dairymen in Pennsylvania were arrested for using chemical preservatives instead of ice for keeping their milk sweet for a reasonable length of time.

The 376 samples of milk on which prosecutions were ordered and whose venders were obliged to pay the fine fixed by law were below the standard in butter-fat and solids. In some instances water was added. This shows a rather large percentage of unlawful selling of milk that had been "doctored" as in contrast with the immediate past, although it is in marked contrast for the better as compared with the record of fifteen or twenty years ago.

NON-ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES.

The agents of the Bureau of Foods purchased during the year 1920 the largest number of samples of non-alcoholic drinks in the history of the Bureau. One thousand two hundred and eighty-four samples were secured and analyzed. Of this number 283 samples were found to be violative of law and prosecutions to that number were terminated. Almost 95 per cent. of these prosecutions was found to be for the use of saccharin as a substitute for sugar.

It will be recalled that during a considerable portion of the year sugar was so scarce that it could be obtained with the utmost difficulty and then only in limited quantities and a very high price. The temptation to use saccharin, which is a coal tar product 550 times sweeter than sugar, was so great that some manufacturers found themselves too weak to resist it. However, as saccharin is injurious to health, a rank fraud and forbidden by the laws of this Commonwealth all the powers of the State have been and will continue to be used to stamp out the injurious practice of using it as substitute for sugar. Another reason that unscrupulous manufacturers employ saccharin is found in the fact that $3 worth of saccharin will sufficiently sweeten as large a quantity of soft drinks as would require $40 worth of sugar.

Many of the prosecutions for the use of saccharin were found necessary in Philadelphia, as well as in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties. The others were scattered over the Commonwealth. It is greatly to be hoped that the increasing ease with which sugar may now be obtained will reduce the temptation to employ saccharin to the minimum.

MEETING OF THE AGENTS.

Conferences of the agents are called by Director Foust about three times a year. These meetings are held under his presidency and usually at some central point. The agents are instructed to make notes of all problems arising in their respective districts, especially such questions as require consideration and final decision. This is done, not only for the purpose of securing uniformity but also that all the agents may hear about matters demanding consideration in each district. The decisions arrived at are likely to be of considerable value as criteria whereby each agent may be enlightened concerning the proper methods to pursue.

The last meeting of this sort was held at Lock Haven early in the present year, its chief purpose being the closing up of all cases on the books of the agents for the past year as well as to outline the work for the spring and summer of 1921. The Lock Haven meeting was one of the most interesting ever held and was greatly enjoyed by those who were present. A large volume of unfinished business was closed up while many new questions were raised and considered during the progress of the conference. Such conferences are of the utmost value to the agents and, also to the Bureau of Foods as well as to the consuming public.

WHAT IS BREAD?

JOINT STANDARDS COMMITTEE ANNOUNCES TENTATIVE DEFINITION OF BREAD FOR CONSIDERATION OF FOOD OFFICIALS AND THE TRADE.

A tentative definition of "Bread," "Wheat Bread," "White Bread" has been announced by the Joint Committee on Definitions and Standards of Foods, according to officials of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, who are charged with the enforcement of the Federal Food and Drugs Act. Interested persons are invited to submit suggestions and criticisms of the tentative definition for the consideration of the committee when it meets for final action.

The text of the tentative definition as announced by the committee is as follows:

"Bread, Wheat Bread, White Bread, is the clean, sound, sweet product obtained by baking in loaf form and at a temperature of 400 degrees to 500 degrees F. a dough consisting of a leavened and kneaded mixture of flour, potable water, edible fat or oil, sugar or other fermentable carbohydrate substance, salt and yeast, with or without the addition of milk or a milk product. It contains, one hour or more after baking, not more than 38 per cent. of moisture, nor more than 1 per cent. of salt, and its acidity does not exceed the equivalent of 3 cubic centimeters of normal alkali for 100 grams of bread.

"In the United States the name "bread" unqualified, is understood to mean wheat bread or white bread. The dough of bread is also baked in the form of rolls and other units smaller than the loaf.

"Milk Bread is wheat bread in the manufacture of which the water ingredient has been replaced by milk or its equivalent."

The committee announces also that future consideration will be given to the questions involved in the use in bread-making of such additions as diastatic ferments, certain extracts or special preparations of grains, and salts used as yeast auxiliaries; also to those concerning minimum limitations for the proportions of protein and total ash. Suggestions for the proper designation of bread made, in whole or in part, with skim milk in place of water are desired by the committee.

The Joint Committee on Definitions and Standards is composed of three representatives from the United States Department of Agriculture, three from the Association of American Dairy, Food and Drug Officials, and three from the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists. This committee recommends definitions and standards for foods to the respective associations and to the Department of Agriculture, which, when formally adopted are used to guide Federal and State officials in the enforcement of food laws.

Suggestions and criticisms may be addressed to the Secretary of the Joint Committee on Definitions and Standards, Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CONCERNING CIDER VINEGAR.

Out of fifty-eight samples of vinegar collected by agents of the Bureau of Food during the year 1920 eighteen were found to be adulterated and prosecutions were entered and terminated in each case. In former years some trouble was experienced in educating manufacturers and venders up to a proper observance of the Vinegar law of the State. It was enacted for the specific purpose of encouraging our farmers to convert their surplus apple crop into cider and from that product manufacturing cider vinegar.

Special efforts were made by the Bureau during the past year to educate the farmers to make cider vinegar. The adoption of the prohibitory amendment to the Federal constitution, as well as the enactment of the Volstead Act, with its drastic provisions induced the Director of Foods to undertake this particular campaign. Under the restrictions of the Federal act a farmer who assumes to manufacture cider for sale runs a certain risk as it is somewhat difficult to determine at what point the alcohol which forms in the cider exceeds one-half of 1 per cent., the lawful limit.

Our farmers have been instructed in the provisions of the state law and encouraged in accordance with its simple provisions to generally turn their surplus apples into vinegar. In doing that they run no risk whatever.

EGGS, FRESH AND OTHERWISE.

The new fresh egg act has supplied a long felt want. Under its provisions householders and other consumers are getting a much better quality of egg than in former days. The "fresh" eggs supplied them are now usually fresh in fact as well as in name. We expect that as the law works its way into public knowledge it will be almost universally respected and obeyed by dealers in eggs. As it was, out of 149 samples of eggs collected by the agents of the Bureau in 1920, it was found necessary to institute 78 prosecutions which were terminated by the offenders paying the proper fine. In all these cases the eggs purchased were found to be stale rather than fresh.

SIMMERS, THE VETERAN.

It is within the bounds of reasonable fact to say that the work of the Bureau of Foods during the year 1920 was full of trials, anxieties and perplexities in almost every quarter of the State. This was particularly true of Philadelphia, the metropolis of the State. The work there is in charge of Robert M. Simmers, who is now 76 years of age, was a Union soldier during the trying years 1861-65, but who in spite of his age is hale and hearty, possessing both pep and patience in an exceptional degree. Notwithstanding his advanced years and the complications of his field, he has always discharged his duties with signal ability and is hard at it in another year of useful service. Mr. Simmers has been an agent of the Bureau for over 25 years.

BREAD, CAKES, AND PUDDINGS.

Sixty-two samples of bread, cakes and puddings were purchased by the agents of the Bureau of Foods under the general food law. Sixty samples of canned fruits and vegetables were likewise purchased. Within the same period 154 samples of confectionery as well as 533 of flour and other miscellaneous products. Out of the flour collected by the agents, it was found that 24 samples contained nitrous acid. That number of prosecutions was terminated. Seventy-seven prosecutions for the sale of adulterated chocolate coated cherries were also terminated. These were the chief prosecutions under the general food law out of 202 bought and terminated. The others were of a miscellaneous character.

COLD STORAGE AND OTHER MATTERS.

The work of the Food Bureau is by no means monotonous. There is sufficient diversity to keep everybody connected with the Bureau interested every day in the year, conditions changing from year to year. New products are constantly being put on the markets under all sorts of trade and coined names, practically all of which are mixtures and compounds. Such conditions necessitate constant supervision as well as the purchase of samples of the various goods on the market. The purchase is followed by careful analysis for the purpose of testing the claims made on the labels. It is the design of the food laws of Pennsylvania to require pure food products and to protect the health of the consumer as well as his purse. To this end adulteration is forbidden. Even that comparatively harmless form of adulteration which cheapens the cost to the manufacturer but does not endanger human life is forbidden unless the fact that it contains foreign ingredients is plainly stated on the label.

The Cold Storage Act of 1919 will soon be in force two years. It is working well, fulfilling all the claims of its friends. In some respects its provisions are more readily understood than those of the old law. The only essential change is the time limit which was extended to a period of twelve months, thus bringing it into harmony with similar laws in other states. The cold storage industry of Pennsylvania represents an investment of one hundred million dollars. The law places the supervision of all cold storage plants in Pennsylvania as to sanitary condition and the products stored therein under the supervision of the Bureau of Foods. The largest cold storage buildings are located in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Erie.

CARE OF THE COW.

GOOD COWS, GOOD FEED, GOOD SURROUNDING AND COMFORT ARE THE ESSENTIAL THINGS.

In order that one may be assured that he is going to get the highest possible returns from keeping cows, the care of the cow must have the owner's earnest consideration. It is not sufficient that the cow be a good milk producer and that she is supplied with plenty of food containing the right percentages of the different essential nutrients. The care which she receives contributes just as much toward success or failure as either, perhaps both, of the above.

The cow should be handled so that her absolute comfort is provided for. If she is comfortable she will be contented and will do the very best she is capable of doing.

There are many things to take into consideration in providing for her comfort. Many people have the idea that comfort for the cow means spending a lot of money, at least that is the excuse offered by many cow owners who do not give their cows proper care. It is a great mistake. The cow can be made just as comfortable and contented in a cheap barn as in an expensive one, and other arrangements can be planned so that inexpensive ones will suit her just as well as the other kind.

It might be well to consider the influences which contribute to the comfort of the cow and to the success of her owner. They may be itemized as follows:

First, proper condition of the barn. Second, proper conditions about the yards and pastures, Third, pure food and water. Fourth, kind treatment.

Referring to the arrangement of the cow barn, it is difficult, yes impossible, to advise an arrangement which will suit all locations. Further than this, every farmer has his favorite plan, but comfort is the great thing to keep in mind. When planning the dairy barn everything else should be sacrificed, if necessary, to insure absolute comfort. It is very necessary that the barn be so constructed as to insure protection from the most severe weather in the section of the country where located. The question of good ventilation should be solved, insuring pure air even during the most severe weather. Draughts of cold air are dangerous and are not possible in a properly constructed barn.

The stall and fastenings should be so arranged as to permit freedom of movement of the cow and to provide for her cleanliness. Proper drainage is absolutely necessary, and dangerous walks and gangways should be avoided.

The yards should be so arranged that they are protected from chilly winds and so that the cows are isolated from the rest of the livestock on the farm. Proper drainage must be secured, so that the yards will always be dry. The pasture should be provided with shade and be connected with the barnyard if possible, thus relieving the cow of any temptation to visit the growing cornfields or cabbage patch.

The cows should not only be provided with plenty of food in order to insure their comfort, but it should be of the right kind and quality. Their food should be just as fresh and wholesome as possible, and in order that its purity may be guaranteed, it must be properly taken care of. An abundant supply of pure water must always be on hand. A hole in the ice in the winter-time and a mud puddle in the summer-time have contributed to the failure of many dairies. Water in a stagnant form is not fit for the stock and the pasture should be drained, so that such conditions are not possible. If it is not convenient to do this, the pond should be fenced. Pure well water or running water should be supplied in the pasture, if possible. Plenty of salt should also be provided.

Perhaps the most important of all is the treatment which the cow should receive at the hands of her owner, or the person who cares for her. There are many instances where the best dairy cows were used and where good methods of feeding were practiced and still results fell far short of what might reasonably have been expected, simply because the cows did not receive that kindly treatment which is so essential.

The herd, as a whole, should be moved slowly and should never be hurried. A cross dog should either be dead or chained up. The dairyman who has learned to handle his cows so that they are fond of him and are pleased to have him come around, has learned one of the most valuable lessons that it is possible for him to learn.

The most successful dairymen are intimately acquainted with each and every cow in the herd. The same affection which prompts the mother cow to do all she can for her calf will prompt her to do all she can for her owner. Scientific investigations have proven the truth of that statement.

Each cow should have a name and should always be spoken to when she is approached. A kindly word spoken to a cow, supplemented by kind treatment in general, will accomplish wonderful results.

Coupled with the kindly treatment of the cow is regularity of feeding and milking. She will learn to look forward to her feed and water at just such a time each day and will be contented if she is not disappointed. Careful experiments have demonstrated, that a common cow will produce quite satisfactory results, when properly cared for. A good rule for the dairyman to follow is to make every cow in the herd do the best she is capable of doing, whether she is a common cow or a special type dairy cow, and this can be accomplished by following the simple rules outlined above.

OLEO AND WALLACE.

It is safe to say that the appointment of Mr. Henry Wallace as Secretary of Agriculture by Mr. Harding aroused no enthusiasm in Packingtown. If there is one man who is the avowed enemy of their evil ways it is this same Mr. Wallace.

His attitude toward the packers, insofar as it directly affects the dairy industry, is primarily coupled up with the thought of what may be expected of him in his attitude toward oleomargarine legislation. It seems safe to say that it will be none too sympathetic. It is not to be inferred from this statement that The Creamery Journal feels that Mr. Wallace will make any efforts to dump all the oleomargarine manufactured into the Atlantic Ocean but it does believe that any attempts to weaken the restrictions which now govern its sale will receive little sympathy from the new secretary. Further, while it is not deemed likely that Mr. Wallace will attempt to disassociate the manufacture of animal fat margarin from the packing industry, the packers may find the secretarial attitude quite hostile toward any attempts on their part to take too great an interest in the manufacture of so-called nut margarins. To go a little farther, the activities of the packers in the dairy produce business may be subjected to a new scrutiny. On the whole, it can hardly be felt that the packers will look upon Mr. Wallace's appointment with enthusiasm.

HARRISBURG, PENNA.:

About June 23, 1921, three women died at Greensburg, Penna., the attending physician alleging that the deaths were due to the eating of ripe olives, as the people who ate no ripe olives were not ill, but the people who ate of the ripe olives died. An investigation was promptly made by Special Agent H. M. Gooderham, Patton, Cambria County, who obtained a portion of the identical ripe olives eaten at the Wentling home, as well as two jars, intact, of the same pack from the Pittsburgh store. All three samples were forwarded to Dr. Randle C. Rosenberger, Professor of Hygiene and Bacteriology, Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and the following is his report:

My dear Sir:—

On July 1st I received two original packages of ripe olives, numbered 3007 and 3008; and a bottle containing four olives and a small amount of liquor, numbered 3006.

The two original packages when opened presented a most agreeably aromatic odor, and the taste of the fruit was not impaired as I and my assistant ate several.

All of these samples were macerated in their liquor (which was clear) and inoculations made intraperitoneally into guinea pigs.

The animal inoculated with number 3007 died within twenty-four hours and the autopsy showed a slight exudative peritonitis, which probably caused its death.

The other animal inoculated with number 3008 died within thirty-six hours and this also showed slight peritonitis.

Two guinea pigs were inoculated with varying amounts of sample numbered 3006; one animal died within six hours and the other animal, receiving a smaller dose, became very sick, apparently recovered, but died within forty-eight hours.

During the last few hours, there seemed to be an apparent paralysis of both hind legs. There were no lesions present upon autopsy.

A third pig was inoculated intraperitoneally with the material after having passed through a Berkfield filter. This pig died within twelve hours; no lesions were demonstrable at autopsy.

Cultures were made from all preparations in glucose bouillon and glucose agar, and prepared for anaerobic cultivation.

Glucose agar was inoculated with the material from each specimen, placed in capillary glass tubes and sealed for anaerobic cultures. All these preparations were studied at the end of forty-eight and seventy-two hours, but no organism corresponding to the B. botulinus was observed. After ninety-six hours the tubes were again studied but no organism was present which resembled the B. botulinus.

SUMMARY:

The two original packages of olives numbered 3007 and 3008 were in my opinion quite safe to eat as a food.

Number 3006 however, consisting of four olives and a small quantity of liquor were absolutely unfit for food purposes. These olives gave off a very offensive, rancid, penetrating odor and the liquor was cloudy.

It seems evident that the three animals (guinea pigs) died of toxemia, as the last one died of a filtered product. The second pig showed slight paralysis, while the first and the third pig died one within six, and the other within twelve hours with symptoms of intoxication very shortly after inoculation.

A white mouse which was fed the macerated olives upon bread is alive after ten days.

There were no lesions in any of the three guinea pigs at autopsy, so it appears that they died of toxemia.

Whether these deaths were due to botulism or simply due to toxins of other bacteria is problematical; but no evidence of B. botulinus or its poison was obtained in any culture. (The characteristic rancid odor given off in pure cultures of this organism was entirely absent.)

It is probable that from the effects upon the guinea pigs, results were due to poisons or toxins rather than a specific toxin of the bacillus botulinus.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Dr. Randle C. Rosenberger.

Hon. James Foust,

My dear Sir:—

I am enclosing this added information regarding the study of the olives from the Greensburg cases.

On July 20th I took half an olive and a teaspoonful of liquor from sample No. 3006 mixed it up with chicken feed and fed it to three half grown chickens.

In twenty-four hours, in one chicken, a well marked case of limberneck, and death within thirty-six hours, occurred. A second chicken is more slowly developing the same condition, while the third, at this writing, is "groggy."

Limberneck, as you know in fowls, is due to practically the same thing as botulism in man, and it therefore appears that in this specimen of olives, though I was unable to demonstrate the bacillus botulinus, its toxin was evidently present.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Dr. Randle C. Rosenberger.

Dear Mr. Foust:—

Supplementing my letter of July 5, 1921, I am enclosing a photostat copy of a report of an investigation made by our Buffalo Station of the outbreak of botulism at Greensburg, Penna. The report is self-explanatory. Supplementing it I may say that the specimen submitted by the inspector under Investigational No. 29446, which was a portion of the olives served at the dinner, was found to be toxic to guinea pigs, and the organism present was serologically identified as Bacillus botulinus, type A. The culture is now in the course of purification. Referring to the statement made on the last page of the report that this sample although in cloudy liquor had no odor, it may be stated that this same specimen when received at the Bureau showed to a very marked degree the odor which we have come to associate with ripe olives containing Bacillus botulinus. The same odor is usually noted in olives which have undergone the sporogenes decomposition. The olives in the two unopened bottles submitted under Investigational No. 29447, which were obtained from the original cases in possession of the Pittsburgh dealer, were non-toxic. One showed the same odor which characterized the toxic specimen obtained from the opened container partially consumed at the Wentling dinner party. In the other the olives were largely disintegrated. It is interesting to note that of the nine cases found in the dealer's possession totaling presumably about 108 bottles but two showing evidences of decomposition were found by the inspector, both of which gave no evidence of toxicity. This merely emphasizes the difficulties which will be encountered in preventing outbreaks of this kind.

A report already received from our Western District is to the effect that this particular pack consisted of Ascolano and Sevilano olives picked in the usual manner, packed in glass bottles of one size only and sterilized in boiling water forty minutes. The packer himself is now urgently requesting the return of all unopened stocks of this pack by individual communications to each of the consignees. Notwithstanding this action on the part of the packer the Bureau will advise State and City Officials of the names of consignees just as soon as the list is received. Our information is that the packer is at the present time conforming strictly with all the recommendations which have been made for the preparation of a safe pack of olives.

Respectfully,

Botulinus Poisoning

Wentling Case.

Greensburg, Pa.

Report.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 6, 1921.

CHIEF, EASTERN DISTRICT:

This is a report of an investigation which followed receipt of your telegram of June 27th, 1921, regarding deaths at Greensburg, Pa., supposedly caused by the ingestion of ripe olives.

Inspector Miller of this Station was assigned to the case and arrived at Greensburg early the next morning, June 28th, his investigation continuing until July 1, 1921 inclusive.

The dinner party which preceded the three deaths, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Wentling in Greensburg on June 21st, 1921 at about seven o'clock in the evening. Mr. Wentling is an official of a coal company at Greensburg and prominent in the business life of the community. His wife, Mary Lynch Wentling, one of the poison victims, was a daughter of Thomas Lynch who was formerly associated with H. C. Frick in the latter's coke interests. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wentling had been active and popular socially, and Mrs. Wentling according to report gave much of her time and means to charitable causes.

It had been the custom for sixteen or more years for Mr. and Mrs. Wentling to have a dinner party on Mr. Wentling's birthday, June 21st, and the custom was observed this year as usual. There were present, in addition to the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. J. Covode Reed, the latter a sister of Mr. Wentling, Miss Golden Wentling also a sister of Mr. Wentling, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Bovard. A nurse in the Wentling home, Miss Ethel Woodward, was in the kitchen after the dinner and ate some of the olives now under suspicion. There were also two Slavish maids in the kitchen, one of whom tasted the olives and not liking the taste spat it out.

There was also served at the dinner:

Cantaloupe:

Broiled Spring Chicken: Each person was served with one-half chicken.

Potatoes with butter sauce:

New Peas:—From the Wentling garden.

Stuffed Fresh Tomatoes (Rice stuffing):

Lettuce salad:

Ice Cream:

Coffee:

Cake:

as well as the ripe olives in question.

The nurse, Miss Woodward, who had been with the family for fifteen years and assisted Mrs. Wentling with household affairs is reported to have assisted Mrs. Wentling in the arrangement for this dinner. Following the sickness and deaths of Mrs. Wentling and Miss Woodward, the two kitchen maids became very much frightened and one of them temporarily insane. Mr. Wentling was so stunned that he does not even remember that olives were served. Information concerning the menu was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Bovard. Mr. Bovard said that he was very hungry the night of the dinner and ate and drank heartily, partaking of everything except the olives. None of the three men ate olives, but Mr. Bovard thinks they took everything else.

Mrs. Bovard partook of everything served and also ate one olive. She says it was the largest olive she had ever seen, was firm and delicious with no suggestion of bad odor or taste. She would have eaten another had the dish been near, but it was left at the opposite end of the table and she did not ask for it.

Neither Mrs. Bovard, Mr. Bovard, Mr. Wentling, or Mr. Reed felt any ill effects following the dinner.

Mrs. Wentling was thirty-nine years of age and five months pregnant. With her dinner she ate two olives. She felt no ill effects and was apparently in normal health until the next afternoon when she had lunch at a country club. There she ate a tomato sandwich and, feeling nauseated, immediately returned home. She later vomited and about one thirty o'clock in the morning of the 23rd, Dr. Walter M. Bortz was called. He found temperature and pulse normal. The only symptoms the patient presented were nausea and vomiting. The bowels were irrigated and stomach washed out with great relief to the patient, who apparently felt well until noon of the same day when a slight difficulty in articulation was noticed and she again began vomiting. The difficulty in articulation gradually progressed and difficult respiration was noticed about three o'clock in the afternoon. These symptoms steadily progressed and the patient died at ten P. M. There was no paralysis of any facial muscle. Patellar reflexes were normal. Heart action was as high as 156. The patient died of respiratory paralysis.

Miss Ethel Woodward, the nurse maid was thirty-two years old. She was a strong, healthy person, weighing about two hundred forty pounds. She had eaten a picnic lunch with the Wentling children earlier in the evening and it is not known whether she ate again after coming home of the same food served at the dinner. It is known she ate three of the olives that evening and three or possibly more the next morning. In the afternoon of the 22nd, about eighteen hours after she had eaten the first olives she began to vomit. She was attended by Dr. Walter M. Bortz about two a. m. of the 23rd, vomiting had continued from the onset the previous afternoon, there was difficult respiration and a sensation of choking in the throat, temperature and pulse were normal. A soapsuds enema was given. Castor oil was given by the mouth and immediately vomited, but the patient seemed relieved. The physician again saw the patient at ten a. m. the same day when difficulty of respiration was so marked that the patient was blue, thrashing about on the bed and grabbing at her neck. Pulse and temperature were still normal. She was unable to swallow and when vomiting, was choked by the vomitus. The symptoms gradually progressed and the patient died at twelve o'clock (noon the 23rd). The pulse continued to beat two minutes after respiration failed. Death was due to respiratory paralysis.

Mrs. J. Covode Reed was forty-six years old. With her dinner she ate two olives. It is not clear whether she first became ill on the day following the dinner or on the next day. The first symptoms were dryness of the throat and difficult articulation but no headache or other pain. Dr. Edward M. Clifford was called at noon on the 23rd. At that time the patient could swallow and during that day the Doctor could give calomel and milk by the mouth. He says that the patient had double vision and a blurred condition of the eyes from thirty-six hours after the dinner. After sixty-four hours she could not swallow even her own saliva. There was no vomiting at any time. She showed signs of being blue after sixty hours from the time of the dinner. After noon of the 24th she could not swallow but could move her lips and make herself understood until noon of the 27th. She died at three p. m. on the 27th. Death was caused by paralysis of the muscles of respiration. The heart was beating after respiration ceased. In treating the case, Dr. T. P. Cole assisted Dr. Clifford.

The doctors had received the June 18th number of the American Medical Journal only a few days before and had noted the article on page 1741 regarding anesthesia in the treatment of botulism. The suggested treatment was followed from Friday, the 24th, until the patient died. Antitoxin received from the Bureau of Animal Industry on the morning of the 25th was given at eleven thirty a. m. The temperature was then 100 6-10, pulse 120 and respiration 22. There was no reaction. The temperature went down. The next dose was given at eight thirty in the evening. Temperature was then normal, pulse had gone up to 130, however, respiration remained the same at 22. Regarding Mrs. Reed's symptoms Dr. Cole says "There was dropping of both upper eyelids. No power to elevate them, next came paralysis of throat and tongue, inability to articulate, inability to swallow. She suffered from anuria, the urine was loaded with albumen, there was evidently acute infectious nephritis. Death was caused by failure of respiration due to infection believed due to bacillus botulinus."

Dr. Cole intends to write an article for the Medical Journal reviewing the cases.

Describing the treatment given, Dr. Clifford said, "I cleaned the stomach, and entire alimentary tract as well, with salines. We began the ether and camphor treatment on Friday and kept it up until the last. Hypodermics of oil of camphor were given, also two ounces of ether and two ounces of olive oil per rectum were given every three hours. We also tried to sustain life by the "Murphy drip" and also used intravenously a saline solution and a preparation of glucose, two of each. Adrenaline was also added to saline solution." Both doctors stated that the antitoxin had no effect whatever either beneficial or otherwise.

Miss Golden Wentling, adult sister of Mrs. Reed ate one olive at dinner. Before going home, at her brother's invitation, she drank a glass of beer. After reaching home she vomited. She felt no ill effects afterward and assisted in the care of her sister during the latter's illness. After the sister died, Miss Wentling thought she had symptoms of the trouble and is now under treatment from Dr. Clifford. Dr. Clifford maintains that her only trouble is exhaustion and nervousness. Dr. Cole believes that she is slightly affected.

After suspicion had attached to the olives, Mr. Wentling asked for them and the maid brought them in a mason fruit jar, saying that the original container had been lost. Later she brought a plain jar, the cap of which had been lost and the label washed off, and identified it as the jar in which the olives had been received. Mr. Wentling still has the jar which bears no mark of any kind, except the figure "2" blown in the glass in the center of the bottom. The jar is of the same size and shape as those found at the Stevenson store in Pittsburgh bearing label of Ehmann Olive Co., Oroville, Calif. Some of those bottles also have the figure "2" in the bottom while others have the other numbers, from one to ten respectively, blown in the bottom.

The remaining olives were sent by Mr. Wentling to the local hospital where some examination was made by a student physician named W. H. Robinson. Mr. Robinson states that the product had a "musty rotten molasses odor," and the liquor was cloudy. He states that he found various kinds of bacteria on a single slide, many rod shaped, some single, some two together and some three together which he suspected were bacillus botulinus.

The Secretary of the Greensburg Board of Health, Mr. Samuel A. Clements took a sample of the olives and sent it for examination to Clinical Laboratories, Pennsylvania Department of Health, Hygiene Building, Philadelphia, University of Pennsylvania.

After the hospital authorities had completed their examination the portion of olives and liquor was returned to Mr. Wentling and by him turned over to Inspector Miller and State Food Inspector, H. M. Gooderham, who had been detailed by Food Commissioner Foust to make an investigation.

The portion was divided and Inspector Miller submitted his part to the Microbiological Laboratory under Inv. number 29446. The sample as submitted consisted of about three olives and perhaps an ounce of liquor. To insure safe delivery, the sample was divided into two parts and sent by registered mail, each part being registered separately.

Mr. Wentling told the Inspectors that the olives had been purchased at the Wood St. store of George K. Stevenson Company, in Pittsburgh, Pa. about two and one-half months before. He said that he and Mrs. Wentling were at the store together and that she purchased the olives. He said he paid cash for the several items bought. On going to the Stevenson store the inspectors found that the olives corresponding in size to those obtained from Mr. Wentling were the largest size carried and were the Ehmann Olive Co. 5X grade. Inspector Miller later found record of a bill of goods sold to Mrs. Wentling in January 1921, which included a bottle of 5X olives showing that the family had used that grade. Of the purchase described by Mr. Wentling, having been a cash transaction no record could be found.

In this connection conversation which Mrs. Bovard recalls as having taken place at the dinner is significant. After Mrs. Reed had eaten the olives she remarked upon that fact, saying they were the first she had eaten since the Detroit olive case in which some friends had been poisoned. Mrs. Wentling assured her that she need not be alarmed as, "We have had these (or them) before." The inference being that they had had the same brand before. This is borne out by the record of the purchase of 5X olives in January.

The 5X olives had been received by the Stevenson Company about April 1, 1920, from Thompson-Nattress Co., 105 Hudson St. New York.

There were twenty-five cases of a dozen bottles each in the shipment and the dealer had on hand nine cases and some odd bottles. No complaint had been received prior to the present case. The olives had been taken off sale as soon as notice of the trouble was received and the city authorities also embargoed all Ehmann Ripe Olives in the City.

Inspector Miller examined all the jars in the original cases as well as those on the shelves and found none showing cloudy liquor. He took Inv. Sample 29447 consisting of one jar from each of nine cases with additional jars from cases five and six to make a dozen jars in all. Two of the jars showed signs of leakage.

The cover of another jar gave a hollow sound on being tapped, indicating gas. The sample was forwarded to the microbiological laboratory.

We would call special attention to the following facts brought out in this investigation. One person ate one entire olive, from the suspected jar of olives, without any ill effects whatever, also that she detected nothing unusual in the odor or taste of the olive eaten. Further the sample obtained by Inspector Miller under Inv. No. 29446, although in cloudy liquor had no odor which would have warned a consumer unless possibly such person was an expert and gave critical attention to the product before eating.

Respectfully,

BACILLUS BOTULINUS.

Botulism has undoubtedly existed for many years, deaths, with characteristic symptoms, as a result of sausage poisoning, being reported before the disease was identified. The actual cause of the disease has only been demonstrated in comparatively recent times—1894—by the scientist, Van Eremengenn, who studied a series of cases in Belgium. Twenty-three persons became ill, with three deaths, from eating brine preserved ham. From parts of this ham and from the bodies of the victims Von Eremengenn isolated a germ to which he gave the name Bacillus botulinus after the Latin word, "botulus", meaning sausage.

The poisoning is caused by a toxin which is developed by the growth of an anaerobic spore-bearing bacillus which is called B. botulinus. It was considered until recently, that the organism itself was not harmful if taken into the gastro-intestinal tract unless it was associated with performed toxin and that it does not elaborate toxin within the body; in the light of recent knowledge it has been shown that this is not the case. In this connection it has been pointed out that all danger from B. botulinus would be removed by boiling canned food, since the toxin is easily destroyed by heat. Recent experiments, however, indicate that the organism itself is dangerous, for under certain conditions it can grow and produce its toxin inside the animal body.

Many of the foods we eat form suitable mediums for the growth of B. botulinus and for the formation of its toxin, and the conditions within an airtight can or jar are ideal for its growth. All that is necessary for the formation of the poison in many kinds of canned food is that spores of the organism remain alive within the container after it has been processed.

It has been repeatedly shown that B. botulinus is widely disseminated in nature and that it may be present on vegetables or fruits which are taken fresh from the garden or purchased in the open market. Since it is impossible to determine, except by prolonged laboratory work, whether any given sample of food contains spores of B. botulinus, it is evident that we must presume that every sample of food for canning is potentially dangerous and in our canning processes we should aim to apply sufficient heat to insure the destruction of any spores which may be present.

"It has been said that only foods which are so spoiled as to be obviously unfit for consumption may contain the botulinus toxin, but this is not the case. It is probable that there is always more or less marked evidence of spoilage in food which is contaminated, but it may not be sufficient to attract attention if one is not on the alert to detect it. There is often some sign of gas formation, such as escape of gas under pressure when the container is opened or leaking, and usually there is a peculiarly disagreeable odor like rancid butter or certain kinds of cheese, but this odor may not be in evidence when the container is first opened and may only be noticed when the food is being cooked. At times the odor is extremely disagreeable and is of itself a cause of danger since it is not uncommon that a person who has filled the nostrils with the penetrating odor of a jar of food which contains the botulinus toxin fails to notice a less marked odor in another can or jar which may be subsequently opened; and there are cases recorded where the housewife was poisoned by eating food from a second jar of vegetables in which she had failed to recognize the odor after inhaling the more powerful odor from the first container. It should be remembered that the toxin of bacillus botulinus is extremely poisonous, and that by merely tasting a small portion of contaminated food one may ingest sufficient poison to cause death. There are several cases recorded in California where women have died after merely tasting a small amount of home-canned food to determine whether it was spoiled."

What protection is there to this fatal poison? Why is it not more commonly found? Fortunately, there are several preventative measures which protect us from this jeopardy. The first is to prevent the bacillus botulinus from gaining access to canned food; to this end fruit and vegetables should be carefully selected for their soundness followed by vigorous, thorough washing to remove completely any adherent matter. Sterilization should be adequate, not only to kill germs but to destroy their spores which are so heat resisting as to survive several hours' boiling. Pressure, steam processing, properly done, destroys germs and spores. The efficient factory process may be contrasted with the ordinary home canning methods which depend on the boiling of water for the source of heat. As a further measure of precaution no food of any description showing even the slightest unnatural odor, unnatural color, swelling of the container, signs of gas or any evidence of decomposition whatever should be used for food purposes. In practically every case of botulism the food was shown to have had offensive or abnormal odor. While all spoiled food may not contain bacillus botulinus, any spoiled food even though the spoilage be slight, may contain it, and in view of the fatal effects of very small amounts of the toxin which this organism generates, the only safe rule is to examine carefully all food products before they are served and to discard those which are very slightly suspicious.

From an investigation of the recent outbreak of botulism in Grand Rapids, Michigan, due to eating canned spinach, it was found that the food material in question had been entirely used up or thrown out. This necessarily hampers the placing of responsibility for deaths on the suspected material. However, the remaining supply of spinach has been examined by various workers and the preliminary work, so far, is convincing that there is bacillus botulinus as well as its toxin present in the spinach. The Food and Drug Department in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Chemistry, are taking adequate steps in removing from the market all shipments made by this company until it can be determined that the food material in question is safe. Michigan Food & Drug Monthly.

THE BACILLUS BOTULINUS.

Poisoning by the bacillus botulinus has in recent years become much more frequent than formerly. Until very recently, botulinus was rare; and when this form of poisoning did occur, it was the result of eating contaminated sausage, from which the name botulinus is derived, or from the use of tainted canned meats. At the present time, however, cases of poisoning from this source are most frequently the result of eating canned vegetables of some sort. Cases following the use of canned string beans or spinach have been most frequent.

Most disease-producing germs are destroyed by boiling. A few germs, however, resist the ordinary boiling temperature of 212 degrees for the reason that they increase by means of spores which require a temperature of 240 degrees, maintained for 40 minutes or more, to accomplish their destruction. The bacillus of tetanus, or lockjaw, Welch's bacillus, which produces gas gangrene, and the bacillus botulinus, are all spore-forming organisms, and hence are not killed by ordinary cooking. When such food is canned, if the temperature to which the cans are exposed in "processing" is not quite high enough, or if the time of exposure is not quite long enough, the spores, if present, will not be killed and will develop in the cans. The contents of the can when it is opened are very likely to have a bad odor and flavor; there is likely to be bulging of one or both ends of the can, caused by the gas formed within. Cans should always be inspected before being opened and rejected if bulged or if the end "flips" when pressed.

Tetanus germs apparently do no harm when taken into the intestine; but the bacillus of gas gangrene, when swallowed, finds its way into the colon, and there develops, producing gas and poisons which cause autointoxication and often very distressing distension. The B. botulinus produces outside the body a highly virulent poison which may cause speedy death. Fortunately, these germs will not grow in the body, and hence do not in themselves do harm if swallowed; but the poisons which they have produced in the can, and which have permeated the food, are so highly virulent that even so small an amount as is contained in an ordinary serving may be sufficient to cause death.

One of the first symptoms of botulinus poisoning is disturbance of the eyesight. The patient sees double, but otherwise may feel as well as usual. Later there is some trouble in swallowing, which may increase until the throat is completely paralyzed. Paralysis may extend to other parts of the body, and when nerve centers controlling vital organs become involved, death occurs. There is usually no fever.

While vegetables in which the B. botulinus or other dangerous germs have developed generally give evidence of spoiling in bulging of the can or by the presence of a bad odor, this is not always true. In a case known to the writer there was no evidence of spoiling. The vegetables appeared to be perfectly wholesome, but a little of the juice injected into a guinea pig produced death very promptly, with the usual symptoms of botulism.

The only safe plan in the use of canned vegetables is to see that they are thoroughly cooked just before serving. Simply warming them is not sufficient. Thorough cooking is necessary.—FROM GOOD HEALTH.

THE BUSINESS MAN AND THE PUBLIC.

There has been a very decided improvement in the quality of the food products offered for sale by the retailers of Pennsylvania during recent years. Not so very long ago about 30 per cent of the articles manufactured for sale in this state were adulterated to a greater or less extent. The condition of affairs became so serious that something had to be done. The pure food legislation of the Commonwealth was the result. The Bureau of Foods of the Agricultural Department was created to frame rules and regulations in harmony with the several acts of assembly bearing on the food of the people. Progress has been made every year. Some prosecutions have been brought. Many thousands of dollars have been collected in the way of fines and turned into the State Treasury. Warnings have been issued. Appeals have been made to the sense of right and justice. Obedience to law has been inculcated by the spoken and the written word. Results have been achieved. The purchaser is getting more for his money than ever before, in the way of good food. His health is likely to be better and his life somewhat longer than it would have been if greed and the clamor for cheap things had been permitted to have their way. The progress made during the last few years is exceedingly gratifying to those who have been charged by the state with the administration of the pure food laws. The growing desire of the consumer for the genuine thing, of the retailer to sell nothing without truthfully representing it, and of the manufacturer to accommodate himself to the new order of things, all these are as they should be.

It is to be regretted that there should be any manufacturers left who have not come up to the advanced position now occupied by the majority of their colleagues. Yet it must be admitted that eternal vigilance is still the cost of pure and wholesome food products. The State laws and the national food and drugs act have done much to promote the public health, but there is still room for considerable improvement. Nothing will bring about the best possible conditions in the food market but the determination of the honest retailer to do his utmost to protect his trusting patrons. Nothing will pay him better. He will have the rich reward of an approving conscience. He will be able to look his fellows in the eye with the consciousness that he has not knowingly done them wrong. He has misrepresented nothing. He has made no overcharges. He has rejected suspicious or adulterated products. We are sure every conscientious grocer will carefully scrutinize the labels on all goods purchased from the jobber or the manufacturer. He is beginning to do that more and more. The national act is of great assistance in this respect. He has begun to look carefully at the labels in the interest of his patrons who are also his neighbors and his friends. He has resolved hereafter to deal upon the square and to make no misrepresentations.

Nor is the consumer forgetting his privilege in this respect. He also is examining the labels. He knows that the pure food regulations of his own state prohibit misbranding and that the national law requires the label to precisely state the exact nature of the article it is supposed to describe. So he likewise is beginning to acquire the habit of examining the label. He was a bit indifferent at first. He did not realize that the pure food laws were passed in his interest; that they were intended to better the quality of the food he was consuming, to prevent the use of poisonous preservatives, and thus to improve his health and lengthen his life. But he is slowly beginning to understand and to approve. He has eaten good food for some years now and he is rather fond of it. He likes the way it has treated him. He seems to be recovering from that chronic dyspepsia which used to harass him almost every moment. He comprehends that his improved condition is the result of the better food laws under which he has been living and he is feeling that it is his duty to reject inferior or adulterated brands. He wants the genuine article, not the counterfeit. He is like the young fellow who was content to read fifth rate novels until one day somebody left in his hand the work of a master. After that his appetite for cheap and sentimental literature vanished. That is exactly what has happened to a majority of the people. They are beginning to look with marked distaste upon adulterated or cheap imitations of food products.

Now it occurs to the Bulletin that it will be greatly to the advantage of the retail merchant if he will also use his eyes diligently when making purchases for his home customers. It will not injure him in the least if he adopt the habit of catering to the very best trade in his community. We do not mean that he shall reject the trade of those who insist upon being served with cheap imitations of the genuine article. But under the new regulations the label must now exactly describe the contents of any package. Jellies made of strawberries may be so labeled with those which were formerly so labeled, but which contained no strawberries, must now be so labeled as to deceive nobody. It is the part of wisdom to tell the customer the exact truth. "Here, madam, is the genuine article, so described by its label. Here is another, also described by its label. The one of best quality costs a little more than the other. Take your choice." A dealer of that sort will soon obtain a great reputation. His patronage will continually increase. For nothing enhances the reputation of a business man more rapidly than a deserved reputation for the absolutely honest transaction of business. Some business men in this country have achieved a world-wide fame by pursuing such a course as we have outlined.

RIGHTS OF THE CONSUMER.

The food laws of this Commonwealth may be described as the progressive growth of a fixed conviction. That conviction was the outcome of serious thought by the pioneer food officials of the State. Its central idea was that the people of Pennsylvania have a right to square treatment when they come to purchase the food products essential to their continued health, vigor and growth. It is upon this corner stone of equal and exact justice that our laws relating to foods and non-alcoholic drinks have been constructed. As a result we feel that the State is justified in the laudable pride she cherishes in the contemplation of these laws.

All adulteration of food products or of non-alcoholic beverages is strictly forbidden by our laws. There was a time when formaldehyde was used freely for the preservation of milk. It was the belief of the men at the head of the Food Bureau in those days that the preservative injected into the milk was injurious to the health of the people.

In the course of time careful chemical analysis proved that this suspicion was well-founded. The fact that milk is an indispensable article of diet for young children and likewise of the utmost importance in many cases of adult sickness made it essential that the milk sold in the Commonwealth shall be pure and free from all adulterants. Laws were framed and enacted accordingly, and it is a great gratification to observe from the reports of the chemists of the Food Bureau that practically all the milk sold in this Commonwealth is pure and absolutely free from all adulterants.

The method applied to milk was employed concerning all other articles of food placed on sale in this Commonwealth. The use of benzoate of soda and of other preservatives is forbidden. The sale of bleached flour is an offense under the laws of the Commonwealth. The use of excessive water in the manufacture of butter or the preparation of sausage, is a violation of law. While water is perfectly harmless the state does not recognize the right of the manufacturer to sell water, which costs him comparatively nothing, at a high price. It believes it is bound by right and justice to take care of the consumer and it also believes that the man who deliberately undertakes to cheat his patrons ought to be punished, and, if he persists, put out of business.

Pennsylvania has a fine collection of food laws. She is justly proud of them. Reputable manufacturers and retailers are glad to obey the laws which protect them as well as their patrons. Obedience sends the maker or the vender away from his place of business each evening with a good conscience and the health of the people is well-protected.

SULPHITES IN GROUND BEEF.

Over one hundred samples of ground beef for preparing Hamburger steak for the table have been purchased throughout the State by the special agents of the Bureau of Foods, and nineteen prosecutions have been ordered where the ground beef contained sulphites. Several years ago the Bureau had considerable trouble with so-called ground beef containing sulphites.

Certain chemical houses are selling, through traveling salesmen, compounds, under trade or coined names, containing salt, saltpeter and sulphites. It is the sulphites that the law specifically prohibits being added to any article of food. Where such a compound is used in ground beef, invariably the product is made from scraps of dark or tainted meat put into the grinder with the compound, which makes the ground meat a bright red color as though ground from freshly slaughtered beef. Hence the fraud and deception in addition to the sulphites rendering the beef injurious to health.

The special agents have received specific instructions to purchase samples of suspected ground beef and forward same to the chemists. Wherever sulphites are found in such meat criminal proceedings will be instituted and the cases vigorously prosecuted.

FORTY PROSECUTION ORDERS.

Forty prosecutions were ordered in March for the unlawful sale of cake, candy, cherries and codfish.

The cake was colored with coal tar dye to give it the appearance of being rich with eggs.

In the candy, sulphur dioxide was found, and in each instance the candy was chocolate coated cherries. The sulphur dioxide was in the cherries and in this manner found its way into the candy.

In the so-called Maraschino cherry cases, sulphur dioxide was found in the cherries, and in the eleven codfish cases the codfish contained boric acid.

SOME CARELESS BUTCHERS.

Six sausage prosecutions were ordered. In three cases the sausage contained excessive water; in two the sausage contained sulphites. In another case the sausage was decayed and unfit for food.

A recent investigation of meat sold throughout the State has disclosed the fact that some butchers are growing careless, and the strong arm of the law must be resorted to for the protection of the public health to make them more careful in selling their products to the public for human consumption.

PAST AND PRESENT OF THE OLEOMARGARIBLE TRADE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The growth of the use of oleomargarine in Pennsylvania during the past fourteen years has been very marked. In an approximate way this is indicated in the difference in the number of licenses issued to oleomargarine dealers by the State Bureau of Foods. In 1907 the number of such licenses issued was 351; in 1920 there were 6,284 or over fifteen times as many.

In the olden days oleomargarine was very commonly sold as butter; colored like butter; in packages like butter and sold at butter prices. In a great many instances the sales then were made without the legally required license so that the comparative number of licenses for the two periods does not indicate exactly the relative quantity of oleomargarine used in the State. A point of special interest in this connection is that to-day the violations of the law are very few. Oleomargarine is sold for what it is. It is put up in distinctively marked packages; is not colored to resemble butter and is sold on its own and not butter price basis.

This change is not a matter of simple growth but has been largely brought about by the vigorous enforcement of the oleomargarine law. The early history of the law enforcement developed a great many difficulties; often the guilty escaped without punishment, and often when convicted the punishment was made very light so that it was not sufficient to deter unscrupulous men from illegal practices.

Probably more than anything else that caused the changes above mentioned; namely, the observance of the law, was the courageous and vigorous action of Judge Audenreid in Philadelphia and Judge McFarlane in Pittsburgh. In a number of cases these judges, upon the conviction of persons accused of violating the Oleomargarine Act, inflicted heavier penalties, and in some other cases sent the offenders to jail. As a result, of the precedent established, it came to be regarded as no longer profitable to break the law, but rather a matter dangerous to the fortunes and liberty of the offender.

The moral value of this wise and courageous judicial action has been most wholesome. Since that time both manufacturers and dealers in oleomargarine in Pennsylvania have become very careful to comply exactly with the law's requirements, and the people to-day, in consequence of this change, are little in danger of being deceived into buying oleomargarine for butter.

As a further result, the public has been able to secure everywhere in the State from licensed, clean, reputable conducted stores any oleomargarine they desire to buy. There is no doubt but under this wholesome and reputable state of the business the people have bought very much more freely than they would have bought if these commodities had been sold under the previous illegally devised schemes of the business.

In the old days, moreover, a very large fraction of the trade was in the hands of irresponsible persons who kept fly-by-night establishments, or by those who simply peddled the product from place to place. To-day the very best grocery establishments in the State include oleomargarine among the food supplies they sell.

In other words the present very large use of oleomargarine in the State is undoubtedly due in considerable measure to the better repute of oleomargarine as sold under the present conditions. Because of these changes and conditions oleomargarine is no longer an article of suspected purity and unwholesomeness. It has come to its own place as a standardized article.

FOUR NEW FOOD LAWS.

The recent Legislature passed four laws charging the Bureau of Foods, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, with their enforcement.

A new law states that butter shall be deemed to be adulterated,—

“First. If it contains more than sixteen (16) per centum, by weight, of water, or less than eighty (80) per centum, by weight, of butter-fat.

“Second. If it contains any foreign fat, starchy matter, or other substance which injuriously affects its quality or purity.”

This new Butter Law will correct some abuses in Eastern Pennsylvania. The butter standard is substantially the same as the butter standard of the United States Government, as well as other butter countries of the world.

Section five of the Non-Alcoholic Drinks Act was amended by increasing the penalty at the discretion of the court, in order to break up the unlawful use of saccharin as a substitute for sugar. The Non-Alcoholic Drinks Act as now amended provides for a jail sentence for a second offense, and it is to be hoped that the few unscrupulous bottlers in the State will discontinue the use of saccharin. The Keystone State Bottlers' Protective Association of Pennsylvania asked that the law be amended and the penalty increased, in order to protect the legitimate branch of the industry.

An act was passed supplementing the present Oleomargarine Law by making it unlawful to advertise oleomargarine as “butter,” or to use any words such as “Holstein,” “Jersey,” or “Guernsey,” or any other word which is commonly used as designating a known breed of cows, in connection with the advertising and sale of the product. We trust the oleomargarine industry will discontinue using the word “butter or the names of known breeds of cows in connection with their advertisements.

A new law, which can be termed a “soap and water” law and relates only to bottling establishments bottling non-alcoholic drinks, requires that all non-alcoholic drink establishments, utensils, receptacles and bottles be kept in a clean, sanitary condition. This law also had the endorsement of the Keystone State Bottlers' Protective Association of Pennsylvania. The purpose of this new sanitary law is to compel the bottling establishments to clean up and to keep their equipment, bottles and other utensils in a clean, sanitary condition.

THE VALUE OF MILK.

T. S. Davis, Superintendent, Public Schools of Blair County, Tells How Milk Can Save Nations.

In the light of the revelations of history the supremacy of the United States among the nations is threatened, if our people do not retain or adopt a diet in which milk forms the chief food. Superintendent T. S. Davis of the Blair county schools declared in a speech at the “Milk for Health” meeting at Community hall, Altoona, recently that the rise and fall of nations is directly traceable to their partiality for milk as the staple article of food. So long as the Jewish people continued as herdsmen and indulged in a milk, dairy and fruit diet, they climbed steadily to greater power, but when they congregated in cities and eliminated milk in copious quantities from their bill of fare, their power waned.

The same condition is true of Rome. The nations that hold the intellectual supremacy as well as the greatest bodily vigor are the dairy nations, the people who use milk as the back bone of their three meals a day. Ergo, if the United States would retain her proud place, her people must use more milk. Professor Davis's address is as follows:—

"When Moses sent the twelve spies into the Promised Land and they gave their report they said it is a 'land flowing with milk and honey but inhabited by a race of giants,' however on the advice of Joshua and Caleb, two of those spies, the children of Israel went over, conquered the land, and became herders of cattle pitching their tents where the pasturages abounded and living largely on a milk, fruit and grain diet, we are told. They became the great, intellectual, moral, as well as the physical leaders of that Biblical age, giving to us our ideas of God and morality. They only fell from their high estate when they began to move into the cities and change their habits of life, and especially their habit of eating.

"Rome at one time was mistress of the world. Tradition says it was founded and the city built by Romulus and Remus, who were found waifs on the banks of the Tiber and suckled by a she wolf.

"At first Rome was largely an agricultural nation, living on the milk, and milk products of her flocks and herds, her fruits and grains. Even in Caesar's time you who are familiar with his Gallic war will recall how his soldiers each received his allotment of grain and ground it, in his hand mill before baking into bread, his wife and family subsisted at home on the milk and fruits of the garden.

"It was only after wealth, luxury, high living and the congregating of the populace in the cities wrought largely a change of diet that they began to deteriorate and decay.

"The country of the world to-day that leads all others, in its system of public schools, in its care and selection of live stock, and in other ways intellectual and moral, is Denmark, the home of the black and white cow, the Holstein. As long as the Danes and the Hollanders continue to live on their flat lands and raise cows, make butter and cheese, eat plenty of it and drink milk, they will prosper, but, woe betide them, when like the ancient Jews and Romans, they begin to herd in cities, indulge in luxuries, eating and drinking. Then their glory will depart from them and they will only be famous for what they have done on largely a milk diet.

"America until the last census was an agricultural nation far more than half her people living in the open country and any of you who have lived in the open country know what that means, from one to one hundred cows on a homestead. Do you recall that spring house, with the crocks of milk, standing in the cool, limpid water, do you recall that shelf just above the trough in which the crocks stood, and the rhubarb pies, a dozen or more, that were ranged on it in the spring of the year, then later strawberry pie, then later raspberry pie, then later apple pie, then later huckleberry pie, then very often peach and cherry pie.'

"Do you remember how you used to come home from Sunday School and Church, about one o'clock and enter the sacred precinct of that spring house, and how you lifted the lid from those crocks and then lifted the cream with a cup and poured it into a tin cup or quart measure, then a slab of pie in one hand, a cup of cream in the other, a bite, then a sip, on until a pie and sometimes two, and a quart of cream had gone winding down that long long trail into the land of your dreams.'

"Talk about indigestion, there was none, except what was super-induced by too rapid eating. It was on such a diet as this that the forests of America fell before the axe, the homes grew up and blossomed as the rose and will continue to blossom as long as the cow remains the queen of the farmstead and the workers, and particularly the children, partake plentifully of the products of that cow, along with some eggs, a little bacon and plenty of the grains and fruits; but, woe betide us when we flock to the cities as did the Jews and Romans and change our diet. Then shall we, like them, become a race of weaklings, our children under nourished, toothless and, in some cases, almost boneless, because we have failed to provide the materials from which they are made.

"The history of the Jews, the Romans, the Danes and Hollanders and the Americans, all show that as long as a people live on a diet of dairy products and eggs and some meat and plenty of fruit and grains they remain a strong, virile race, but when they begin to change their diet they deteriorate and decay. Let us then say, 'As for me and my household we will eat these things.'

VIOLATIONS OF THE FOOD LAWS.

One of the least pleasant duties of the Bureau of Foods is connected with the prosecution of dealers who are detected violating the food laws of the Commonwealth. This must be done, of course, but there will be great rejoicing on the part of the Director of Foods and all who serve under him when the year's record shows a perfectly white score. When that time will come we do not know, but we are looking forward hopefully to its arrival.

On account of the frailty of human nature many violations of law occur that would not happen if men and women possessed perfect characters. It is a fact that a good many infractions of the statutes are the result of ignorance rather than of design. Either some folks lack the mental capacity to grasp the actual meaning of the laws or they are naturally so careless as to fall into forbidden ways without actually meaning to. Experience usually teaches such folks caution for the future. But there are a few new ones each year.

A goodly number of last year's prosecutions were the result of conditions rather than of any innate depravity among the guilty. At one time there was an amazing and entirely unexpected shortage in the sugar supply. For a time it was out of the question to secure any considerable supply of sugar. Certain dealers in non-alcoholic beverages found themselves confronted by the necessity of closing down or of finding and using a substitute. Of course they should have suspended operations. But however willing the spirit may be the flesh is often very weak. And so they used saccharin. Now saccharin is forbidden by the food laws of Pennsylvania. It is regarded as injurious to health and the laws of this Commonwealth were framed for the protection of its people rather than in the interest of the manufacturer or the retailer. A good many prosecutions resulted. In every case fines were levied and collected.

Under ordinary circumstances there would probably have been no violation of law by the manufacturers of non-alcoholic beverages. As the sugar crop of the world is said to be excellent and the United States has learned a valuable lesson, we may confidently expect comparatively few violations of law from this cause during the present year. Also, as the years pass and dealers become more familiar with the law, and also with its benevolent intention as well as the inflexible purpose of the State to enforce it, we may look forward with hope and some degree of confidence to the future.

ONE MONTH'S RECORD.

Digest of work done by the Bureau of Foods
Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, for the month of April 1921.

Twenty-four hundred and fifty samples of various kinds, makes and names of foods, including non-alcoholic drinks, milk, cream and ice cream, were purchased by the special agents in the field and analyzed by the official chemists during the month of April.

Eighty-four prosecutions were ordered and instituted, as follows:

Four prosecutions for Hamburg steak containing sulphites; one prosecution for fruit syrup containing coal tar dye; one prosecution for selling oleomargarine without a license; twenty prosecutions for violation of the General Food Law; fourteen of the charges were for selling chocolate coated cherries containing sulphur dioxide; one case for selling chicken unfit for food; one case for selling cakes colored with coal tar dye; one stuffed figs case in which the fruit contained sulphur dioxide; one egg noodle case colored with coal tar dye; one glace fruit case containing sulphur dioxide; one candied fruit case containing sulphur dioxide; and fifty-eight prosecutions were instituted under the Milk and Cream Act, the milk being below the standard in butter fat and total solids, and the cream prosecutions were below the standard as to butter fat.

From January first to May first, fifty-two hundred and seventy-three oleomargarine licenses were issued by the Bureau.

The special agents in the field are required under the Oleomargarine Law to keep supervision over every licensed place of business selling oleomargarine to ascertain if the license is displayed in a conspicuous place, if the retail packages to the purchasers are being stamped, conveying its true character.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Harrisburg, Pa.

July 27, 1921.

Honorable James Foust,
Director, Bureau of Foods, Department of Agriculture,
Harrisburg, Pa.

Sir:—

This Department is in receipt of your inquiry relative to the interpretation of the Act of June 2, 1915, P. L. 735, amending Section 3 of the Act of June 8, 1911, P. L. 762. You ask to be advised whether, in view of this amendment, you should prosecute a dealer who sells milk which contains three per centum of butter fat but less than twelve per centum of milk solids, if such dealer file with you an affidavit that nothing has been added to or taken from the milk in question, which is otherwise pure and wholesome, and is not below three per centum in butter fat.

Section 1 of the Act of 1911 declares:

"That it shall be unlawful for any person * * * to sell * * * milk which contains any added water, or milk which has had the butter fat or any portion thereof removed therefrom, or milk to which has been added any substance for the purpose of increasing its consistency or thickness, or milk which contains less than three and one-quarter per centum of butter fat and less than twelve per centum of milk solids. * * *"

Your inquiry presents first the question whether the word "and" in the last clause quoted above shall be read "and" or "or". If it mean "and", then the offense of selling milk below standard is not complete unless the milk is below standard both with respect to its butter fat and its milk solids. If the word "and" mean "or" then it is a violation of the Act to sell milk which is below the standard in either butter fat or milk solids.

Referring to the use of these conjunctions in penal statutes, Endlich, in his work on Interpretation of Statutes, says on page 415, Section 305:

"Both words are interchangeable where the sense and object of the enactment require the one to be substituted for the other, in penal statutes as well as in others, and as against the offender as well as in his favor."

In Vol. 11, Ruling Case Law, 1101, it is said:

"Pure food laws are enacted as a means of protecting the people against the fraud and imposition of manufacturers and vendors of inferior and unwholesome food and medicinal products. Such statutes are of great public interest, and should be so interpreted, if possible, within sound canons of construction, as to secure to the public the benefit intended by the Legislature."

In Com. vs. Kevin, 202 Pa. 23, Mr. Justice Mestrezat, referring to another of our pure food statute, said at Page 27:

"The purpose of the legislature in the passage of the act is most commendable and the statute should receive a construction by the courts that will fully and effectively accomplish the object of its enactment."

Viewing this statute as a police regulation enacted in the interest of the public health and for the purpose of preventing fraud and deception, there is no doubt that the Legislature intended to require that all milk sold should contain a minimum percentage of butter fat and should also contain a minimum percentage of milk solids; and that it should be unlawful to sell milk which is below the standard in either one or the other of these respects.

In my opinion, therefore, it is a violation of Section 1 of the Act of 1911 to sell milk having less than twelve per centum of milk solids, even though it contain more than the minimum amount of butter fat, and does not otherwise offend against the law.

This brings us to the interpretation of Section 3 of the Act of 1911, as amended by the Act of June 2, 1915, P. L. 735. It contains the following paragraph, excepting the words in parenthesis which I have inserted:

"If a person accused of violating section one of this act (in any particular hereafter mentioned) shall furnish satisfactory affidavit that nothing had been added to or taken from the milk in question, which is otherwise pure and wholesome, and is not below three (3) per centum in butter fat, the Dairy and Food Commissioner shall file said affidavit with the records; and no prosecution shall be instituted against said person * * *"

Section 4 of the Act provides:

"That the Dairy and Food Commissioner shall be charged with the enforcement of the provisions of this Act."

You are the officer charged with the enforcement of this law. Prior to the Act of 1915 it was your duty to prosecute a dealer whom you believed to be guilty of any of the several offenses described in Section 1. The amendment, however, authorizes and requires you to withhold prosecutions which it would otherwise be your duty to commence, if the person accused shall furnish a satisfactory affidavit of certain facts. These facts relate to certain specific offenses defined in Section 1, to-wit: adding something to milk, taking something from it, and selling it with a butter fat content of less than three per cent, but do not refer to the amount of milk solids contained in it.

If the amendment be construed so that the filing of an affidavit as to these particular matters would prevent a prosecution for selling milk with less than the required amount of milk solids, it would, in effect, amend Section 1 of the Act by striking out that requirement. I am convinced that this was not the legislative intent. The amendment did change the required percentage of butter fat from three and one-quarter per centum to three per centum, in cases where an affidavit is filed, and if the Legislature had intended to change the required percentage of milk solids or to strike out the requirement altogether, it would have done so expressly. In the absence of such expression the words which I have written in parenthesis are implied.

In my opinion, the amendment does not relate to or affect the requirement as to milk solids. Any prosecution for violation of that requirement is not prevented by the amendment.

From this it follows that when a dealer furnishes an affidavit you need not require him to make any reference therein to the amount of milk solids, and if he should insert such an averment you are nevertheless free to prosecute him for the sale of milk which falls below twelve per centum of milk solids.

I, therefore, specifically advise you that when a dealer sells milk which contains less than twelve per centum of milk solids you should bring your prosecution, even though he should file an affidavit stating "that nothing has been added to or taken from the milk in question, which is otherwise pure and wholesome, and it is not below three (3) per centum in butter fat."

Very truly yours,

GEO. ROSS HULL,
Deputy Attorney General.
